2nd Sunday of Advent

1700 years. The Pope has recently visited Turkey. Whilst there Pope Leo helped mark the 1700th anniversary of the First Council of Nicaea where the basic tenets of Christianity were established in AD325. The council, which was arranged by the emperor Constantine who had legalised Christianity a decade earlier, brought together Bishops who ruled that Jesus was the Son of God. That core belief is still shared with Orthodox and Protestant churches.

Pope Leo XIV visit to Nicaea can be viewed on YouTube or Vatican TV.

Gospel Reflection

Giving hope a fresh chance

The readings today speak of God's promise coming to fulfilment, despite the obstacles which humans continually put in the way. Isaiah is the prophet who encourages a nation that has lost its way to begin again, trusting that God who created the world to be in harmony and at peace will allow it once more to be a place where good can prosper and flourish.

The shoot that springs from Jesse's stock is a promise made almost seven centuries before Jesus but expressing beautifully how God's spirit will shape his life and ministry. And by his light and truth, the world will begin to reflect again the peace which the Creator intended, 'as the calf and lion cub feed together with a little boy to lead them.' The root of Jesse is a signal not just for Israel but for the nations, with blessings for all peoples to enjoy.

Paul's letter to believers in Rome picks up the same point, when he reminds them that Jesus has extended his friendship to pagans as well as to Jews, and that God is honoured when all are living in harmony together. 'It can only be to God's glory for you to treat each other in the same friendly way as Christ treated you.'

The same message is echoed in the reading from Matthew's gospel where John the Baptist strides onto the scene, calling on everyone to prepare a way for the Lord and to make his paths straight. No one is exempt from the challenge nor can any gain easy access. Pharisees and Sadducees who count themselves as Abraham's descendants will only make the cut if they come up with the fruit of repentance and right living.

As we light the peace candle, the second on our Advent wreath, we must ask what needs to be straightened in our way of responding to God's call. How well do we care for the poor, for migrants and refugees, and for the planet which is our common home? What would Jesus ask us to change if he stood in our midst today?

Can we separate the wheat in our lives from the chaff that waits to be burnt? What do we need to change, for hope to be given a fresh chance in our lives today?

Dennis Horton

Responsorial Psalm : Justice shall flourish in his time, and fullness of peace for ever.

The second candle on the Advent wreath represents Peace. Like the first candle, it is also purple. Often called the "Bethlehem Candle," the second Advent candle reminds us of Mary and Joseph's journey from Nazareth to Bethlehem before Mary gave birth to Jesus.
